One is expected to obey, participate, or respond willingly when asked or directed to do. Psychomotor behaviors are performed actions that are neuromuscular in nature and demand certain levels of physical dexterity.

Estimates of soft skills competency were evaluated in a self-test before training.

This type of development is supported through social interaction, defined as mutual or reciprocal action with 'others' in a social environment. The final exam was made up of multiple choice and short answer questions regarding appropriate responses, possible courses of action, and attitudes toward customers.
