There are no discussion topics on this book. And it's no wonder--women spend an average of 35 hours per week doing chores like cooking, cleaning, grocery shopping, and laundry, while their husbands spend less than nine. If you have a regular old-school, non-flat stove top, you can clean it exactly the same way, but the issue here is that baking soda falls down into the burners, which is why I use an all-purpose cleaning spray such as the ones at the top of this post on most of my stove top and only apply baking soda to the really stuck on areas. Prevention is super key when it comes to mold. Dusty glass objects and mirrors: I've used this book so much the pages are falling. Click here for their page on natural pesticide product recommendations.

When something spills use a homemade all-purpose cleaner or even just hot water 10 minutes, open the microwave, remove the bowl of water and wipe down the interior with a cloth.
