The action begins quickly and with each turn of the page, you're drawn into Sunny's world. Have you ever picked up a book because of someone else's recommendation, even though that genre wasn't really your thing? This is a pretty diverse group with the ages of these ladies ranging from their 30s to 90s.

But Edna wears a hot, gungtoting stranger going into Walter's house. Yet I trusted an author whose books I love, and picked up a sample on Amazon. Can Sunny gloss over the minor detail that he carries a gun? But he has his own agenda which doesn't involve playing hero to a curvy second-grade teacher and babysitting her panty-puking puppy.

Not only did I have the cozy mystery feel of one of my favorite genres, the main character just loved reliving those glorious awkward moments.
