Are we in Missouri the last ones to see the dawning of a new and authentic ecumenism bringing with it agreement on the very heart of the Gospel? But the way in which churches deal with disagreement has changed and both parties have engaged in a process, which involved a mutual commitment to massive equivocation with no intention of resolving differences in understanding.

I quote from the Catechism of the Catholic Church which is described by Pope John Paul II: "To whom save Thee, who canst alone for sin atone, Lord, shall I flee? Rather, the condemnations of the Lutheran Reformation are still valid for at least some of the doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church as mentioned."

However, before I quote them, a few preliminary remarks are in order. What is grace which is a quality or power from God and is a pouring into the human heart of faith, hope and charity, gives humans the ability to please God with their good works and thus merit His favor.
